

The authors of the Project Management T-kit:

Bernard Abrignani (writing): Civil servant at the French Ministry of Youth and Sports and project officer at the National Institute for Youth and Community Education. Specialised in youth participation, community development, education, prevention of delinquency, intercultural learning and international youth work.

Anne Dussap (co-ordination, editing): tutor works at the Directorate of Youth and Sport – Council of Europe.
anne.dussap@coe.int

Rui Gomes (writing): freelance trainer and consultant at the time of the writing of the T-Kit, with wide experience in project-based European training courses and a particular interest in intercultural education, minority rights, Human Rights and evaluation. Since March 2000 Rui Gomes works at the European Youth Centre in Budapest, in charge of the Programme and Training. rui.gomes@eycb.hu

Dirk de Vilder (writing): freelance trainer and consultant at the time of the writing of the T-Kit. Specialised in experiential learning, multicultural teamwork, communication and leadership training and international project management. Now working for "Outward Bound" Belgium as a trainer and consultant for profit and non-profit sector. dirk.devilder@outwardbound.be

Peter Merry (editing, proof-reading): freelance trainer and consultant based in the Hague, specialising in intercultural learning, human ecology, theatre in education, conflict management, and group facilitation.

... and the following person has also contributed to the elaboration of this T-Kit:

Alain Roy: is Professor of teacher training at the Institute of Religious Training within the Faculty of Theology at the University Strasbourg. For a period of 10 years he worked at the Council of Europe as Secretary to European Steering Committee for Youth and as a freelance trainer of project management and development in Central and Eastern Europe. His voluntary activities included responsibility for the Young European Christians in the Alsace-Lorraine region.

